INTRODUCTION

The General Assembly created the North Carolina Sentencing and Policy Advisory Commission in 1990 to recommend sentencing law reform and a comprehensive community corrections strategy for the state. In July 1991, the Sentencing Commission published the first Compendium of Community Corrections Programs in North Carolina. The Sentencing Commission used the information in the Compendium to develop community corrections policy recommendations that were adopted by the General Assembly.

This Compendium is the annual update of the first document. The information contained herein is provided by the individual departments and programs themselves. This updated edition of the Compendium is offered as an aid to continued policy development in the area of community corrections.

Section I contains updated narratives of the programs including purpose, eligible population, organizational structure, supervision provided, and statutory authority.

Section II contains program profiles using data from various pretrial programs, the Division of Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities, and Substance Abuse Services in the Department of Health and Human Services, the Division of Community Corrections in the Department of Correction, and various residential programs located around the state. Where available, data include information about admissions, types of offenders admitted, terminations, length of stay, program capacity, and program costs per offender.

Except where otherwise noted, program narratives and data are for Fiscal Year 2009/10.

PRETRIAL SERVICES PROGRAMS

Pretrial Release Programs

Purpose

Many North Carolina counties experience jail population management problems and/or overcrowding. Most people who are in jail are awaiting trial. In order to manage jail populations, numerous counties have initiated pretrial services programs designed to expedite release of certain defendants prior to trial.

Eligible Population

North Carolina statutes require an arrested defendant to be brought before a judicial official (usually a magistrate) without unnecessary delay in order to determine the legality of the arrest and, if the arrest is lawful, to determine conditions of pretrial release. A judge reviews the conditions of pretrial release at the first appearance hearing and subsequent hearings and may modify the conditions at any time prior to conviction.

In North Carolina, there are four types of pretrial release: (1) a written promise to appear; (2) an unsecured appearance bond; (3) an appearance bond secured by a cash deposit, mortgage of property, or a surety by a bondsman; or (4) supervision by some person or organization. North Carolina law allows flexibility in the pretrial release decision. In each judicial district, the Senior Resident Superior Court Judge, in consultation with the Chief District Court Judge, issues recommended policies for pretrial release.

Several levels of pretrial services programs operate in North Carolina counties. Some programs identify low-risk defendants who can be released with minimal monitoring prior to trial. Some programs identify defendants who need enhanced pretrial monitoring via electronic monitoring technology or attendance at a Day Reporting Center. Other programs identify both types of defendants and provide minimal monitoring to certain defendants and enhanced monitoring to others.

Each pretrial services program sets its own eligibility guidelines in consultation with local judicial officials. Some programs use an objective score sheet to assess a defendant's eligibility for supervised pretrial release; others use policy guidelines. Most programs provide information to the magistrates and/or judges who set the conditions of pretrial release, expedite defendants' appearances in court to allow prompt review of conditions of pretrial release, and monitor defendants prior to trial.

Organizational Structure

Pretrial service programs are either county-operated or county-funded through contracts with non-profit programs. The pretrial service program in Guilford County is managed by the Administrative Office of the Courts and is under the direct supervision of the Senior Resident Superior Court Judge. Not every county or judicial district has a pretrial program.

Electronic monitoring technology is used for pretrial defendants in counties where it is available. Some of these counties use the Division of Community Corrections' regional monitoring center in Raleigh, while other counties have purchased their own computers for monitoring defendants.

Supervision Provided

In general, pretrial program staff reviews the jail population daily to identify potential candidates for pretrial release. When defendants are identified, information is collected and verified to determine if they are a good risk for release prior to trial. Defendants are a good risk if they are likely to appear in court as scheduled and if they pose a low risk to the community. In some programs, an objective assessment instrument is used to determine eligibility. Pretrial screeners go to court for the defendant's first appearance and provide information to the judge. Some programs make recommendations to the judge and others just provide information. Defendants who are released to the program are monitored until their court appearances. Monitoring generally involves regular telephone contact or personal contact in special cases. If the defendant fails to report in, the staff reports the violation to the court and the court may revoke the pretrial release.

Defendants in electronic monitoring pretrial programs need enhanced monitoring prior to trial in order to ensure public safety. Electronic monitoring uses computer technology to monitor and restrict the defendant's movement. Other than approved leave to go to work or to receive rehabilitative services, the defendant is restricted to his home. Through the use of a transmitter strapped to a defendant's ankle and linked by telephone lines to a central computer, a continuous signal is emitted. If this signal is interrupted by the defendant going beyond the authorized radius of the receiver, the host computer records the date and time of the signal's interruption and the date and time when the signal resumes. If a signal interruption occurs during a period when the defendant should be at home, the violation is checked by the nearest patrol deputy or by a designated electronic monitoring response officer from the sheriff's department. Electronic monitoring continues until the defendant's court appearance.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. Chapter 15A, Article 26.

Sentencing Services

Purpose

In 1983, the General Assembly enacted the Community Penalties Program Act to reduce prison overcrowding. In 1999, the General Assembly passed the Sentencing Services Act, renaming the program Sentencing Services and defining its purpose as “provid[ing] the judicial system with information that will assist that system in imposing sentences that make the most effective use of available resources.” N.C.G.S. § 7A-770 (1999).

Eligible Population

Sentencing Services programs identify and prepare detailed sentencing plans for offenders who: (1) are charged with or may plead to felony offenses for which the class of offense and prior record level authorize the court to impose an active punishment, but do not require that it do so; (2) have a high risk of committing future crimes without appropriate sanctions and interventions; and (3) would benefit from the preparation of an intensive and comprehensive sentencing plan. Sentencing Services programs also prepare sentencing plans for misdemeanor offenders upon judges’ requests.

Organizational Structure

The General Assembly transferred administration of the program to the Office of Indigent Defense Services (IDS) in 2002. In FY 2009/10, a mix of 21 non-profit, state-operated, and county-administered programs provided services in many counties in the state.

Local boards of directors govern Sentencing Services programs within the framework of the Sentencing Services Act and policies issued by IDS. Local programs run by not-for-profit corporations are required to raise matching funds equaling a certain percentage of their state allotments.

Services Provided

An analysis of program activity shows that in FY 2009/10 the Sentencing Services local programs contacted 4,314 offenders. The programs opened 1,940 cases and presented a total of 1,545 sentencing plans to judges.

In addition to identifying and preparing sentencing plans for high-risk eligible offenders as described above, Sentencing Services programs may contract or arrange for services described in the sentencing plans. Program staff work with members of the judicial system (including judges, defense counsel, prosecutors, and probation officers), as well as community agencies and treatment providers, to identify resources that meet offenders’ needs. Sentencing plans generally include recommendations for either regular or intensive probation, victim restitution, community service work, and participation in treatment.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. Chapter 7A, Article 61.

Deferred Prosecution

Purpose

Deferred prosecution is a District Attorney's decision to withhold criminal prosecution in order for the offender to make amends. The District Attorney agrees to dismiss the case at a point in the future if the defendant agrees to and complies with certain conditions. These conditions often include victim restitution or community service work. With court approval, the prosecutor and defendant enter into a written agreement specifying the conditions the defendant must meet to postpone prosecution.

Eligible Population

The eligible population for deferred prosecution is nonviolent first offenders. By statute, a defendant who is charged with a Class H or I felony or a misdemeanor and has never previously been placed on probation may be placed on deferred prosecution. The defendant must agree to certain conditions; and the victim must be notified of the disposition and given an opportunity to respond. Each District Attorney sets specific criteria for deferred prosecution in the district.

Organizational Structure

Each District Attorney decides whether to institute a formal deferred prosecution program or to use it informally on a less frequent basis. At least 19 judicial districts have formal deferred prosecution programs and numerous districts use it to some degree. When community service work is a condition of deferred prosecution, community service coordinators in the Department of Correction's Division of Community Corrections are authorized to supervise the defendant's performance. In 13 districts, probation officers screen and monitor these cases.

There is no information available regarding the total number of personnel involved or the total costs to administer deferred prosecution. Costs could include District Attorney and Department of Correction staff, depending on the district.

Supervision Provided

In districts with formal deferred prosecution programs, the prosecutor and the defendant sign a formal written agreement that specifies the conditions of the deferment. The court approves and executes the order. When community service work is part of the agreement, community service coordinators from the Division of Community Corrections screen, coordinate, and monitor the community service placement. In several districts, probation officers are involved in screening the cases in the course of doing pre-sentence investigations ordered by the court.

The period of deferred prosecution may not exceed two years. If the defendant complies with the conditions of the agreement, the case is dismissed. If the defendant does not comply with the conditions of the deferred prosecution, the court may order that the charge proceed to trial.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 15A-1341(a1) and -(a2), 15A-1342(a), 15A-1342(i), and 143B-262.4.

COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS PROGRAMS

Drug Treatment Court (DTC)

Purpose

The General Assembly enacted the North Carolina Drug Treatment Act in 1995. North Carolina General Statute Chapter 7A, Article 62, established the North Carolina Drug Treatment Court (DTC) Program in the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) to enhance and monitor the delivery of treatment services to chemically-dependent adult offenders, while holding those offenders accountable for compliance with their court-ordered treatment plans. Local DTCs provide intensive judicial supervision to monitor progress in substance abuse treatment and compliance with court conditions. The goal of the DTC is to break the cycle of addiction that gives rise to repeated law-breaking episodes. By enhancing the offender's likelihood of remaining drug- and crime-free, the DTC seeks to reduce justice system, health system, and other societal costs associated with continuing drug use and criminal activity.

Eligible Population

The General Assembly defined adult DTC as an intermediate sanction in July 2004. The target population for adult DTC is offenders who are:

1. Diagnosed as chemically dependent; and
2. (a) sentenced to intermediate punishment; or
(b) sentenced to a community punishment and at risk for revocation.

Local adult drug treatment programs may still use funds other than State Drug Treatment Court Funds to serve other specialized populations.

Organizational Structure and Budget

The AOC administers the DTC Program, providing consultation, technical assistance, and oversight to local DTCs. A State Advisory Committee provides direction and guidance, promulgates minimum standards, and recommends funding. Between FY 1995/96 and FY 2009/10, the number of DTCs expanded from 5 to 44. During FY 2009/10, there were 25 operational adult DTCs in Districts 3A, 3B, 5, 9A, 10, 12, 13B, 14, 15B, 18, 19B, 21, 24, 25, 26, 28 and 29A. Superior or district court judges lead the drug treatment court core teams and supervise local directors.

The AOC funds court-based DTC coordinators. All treatment is accessed via the public treatment system.

Supervision Provided

All DTC offenders appear before a specially trained judge at (typically) biweekly status hearings for approximately one year. Prior to the status hearing, the DTC core team (i.e., the judge, district attorney, defense attorney, treatment provider, DTC case coordinator, TASC, law enforcement liaison, and probation officer) meets to review each offender's drug test results, treatment attendance, behavior in the community, and treatment plan progress. The core team then recommends appropriate sanctions and rewards. At the status hearing, the judge engages each offender in an open dialogue about his or her progress or lack thereof and, if appropriate, imposes rewards or sanctions to further stimulate the participant's movement through the treatment process. All DTC offenders are involved in intensive outpatient treatment and are supervised by the Division of Community Corrections at an Intermediate Level.

The following intermediate outcome measures provide feedback on the impact of DTC while the offender is under its supervision:

Court Attendance

The unique aspect of DTC versus other sanctions is the requirement that participants report to court and interact with the judge about their behavior and progress every two weeks. These court sessions are personalized and intense.

Retention in Treatment

Retention in a treatment process for up to 12 months is a major objective of DTC. Research indicates that the longer an addict is engaged in treatment, the more likely he or she is to recover from addiction and live a lawful, healthy life.

Drug Tests

Frequent drug testing is an important element of DTC, measuring the offender's compliance with the court's order and reinforcing treatment. Offenders are usually tested twice per week.

Reasons for Unsuccessful Terminations

Participants can be terminated from DTC for a variety of reasons, including non-compliance with court conditions (e.g., failure to report to court, attend treatment, or meet with probation officer), positive drug tests, new arrests/convictions, and technical probation violations unrelated to DTC. They may also be terminated for neutral reasons (e.g., medical reasons).

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. Chapter 7A, Article 62

Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services

Purpose

The purpose of mental health and substance abuse services is to reduce the risk an offender poses to public safety by addressing the offender's criminogenic (crime-producing) needs.

Eligible Population

Mental health and substance abuse services are community punishments. It is in the judge's discretion to order an offender to obtain a mental health or substance abuse assessment and comply with any treatment recommended as a result of that assessment. Mental health and substance abuse services may be special conditions of unsupervised and supervised probation.

Providing services to individuals with the most severe disabilities while allowing them to live in the communities of their choice is the primary focus of the publicly sponsored mental health, developmental disabilities and substance abuse system. The target populations, described in the State Plan: Blueprint for Change, represent individuals with the most severe types of disabilities; and the publicly sponsored mental health, developmental disabilities and substance abuse specialty system is committed to serving these populations. Although anyone may seek services through the public system, its resources must be managed to best meet the needs of these priority populations.

Organizational Structure and Budget

At the local level, governance is provided by an area board and county commissioners with advice and input from the local consumer and family advisory committee and the local human rights committee.

North Carolina's Session Law 2001-437 and Session Law 2006-142 speak directly to the structure, duties and responsibilities of counties and area boards with regard to the public mental health, developmental disabilities and substance abuse service system. This legislation requires counties to appropriate funds to support local programs and specifies the structure and organization of area boards.

Supervision Provided

Local Management Entities (LMEs) are responsible for the management and oversight of the public system of mental health, developmental disabilities, and substance abuse services at the community level. An LME plans, develops, implements, and monitors services within a specified geographic area to ensure expected outcomes for consumers within available resources. The primary functions of an LME include:

- Access for all citizens to the core services described in N.C.G.S. § 122C-2, including 24-hour a day, 7-day a week screening, triage, and referral process and a uniform portal of entry into care.
- Provider endorsement, monitoring, technical assistance, capacity development, and quality control.
- Utilization management, utilization review, and determination of the appropriate level and intensity of services, including the review and approval of person-centered plans for consumers who receive State-funded services, and concurrent review of person-centered plans for consumers who receive Medicaid-funded services.
- Authorization of the utilization of State psychiatric hospitals and other State facilities.
- Authorization of eligibility determination requests for recipients under a CAP-MR/DD waiver.
- Care coordination and quality management, including direct monitoring of the effectiveness of person-centered plans. Monitoring effectiveness includes reviewing client outcomes data supplied by the provider, direct contact with consumers, and review of consumer charts.
- Community collaboration and consumer affairs, including a process to protect consumer rights, an appeals process, and support of an effective consumer and family advisory committee.

- Financial management and accountability for the use of State and local funds, and information management for the delivery of publicly funded services.

For more information about mental health, developmental disabilities and substance abuse services visit www.ncdhhs.gov/mhddsas.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. Chapter 122C.

Treatment Accountability for Safer Communities (TASC)

Purpose

Treatment Accountability for Safer Communities (TASC), formerly known as Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime, is an intervention program for individuals with substance abuse and/or mental health problems who are involved in the adult criminal justice system. TASC programs offer screening and assessment; referral and placement; care planning, coordination, and management; and progress reporting to the criminal justice system.

Eligible Population

TASC is a community punishment. Eligible offenders are involved in the adult criminal justice system and either have been charged with a drug-related offense or indicate a history of or potential for substance abuse and/or mental health problems. TASC priority populations are (1) offenders sentenced to a community punishment who have violated probation and are at risk of revocation, (2) offenders sentenced to an intermediate punishment, and (3) offenders released from prison who have completed a prison treatment program.

Courts may use TASC as a condition of pretrial release, deferred prosecution, or probation. TASC is most frequently imposed as a condition of supervised probation.

Organizational Structure

TASC is administered by the Division of Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities and Substance Abuse Services in the Department of Health and Human Services. Services are available in all 100 counties. Four TASC Regional Coordinating Entities manage TASC services throughout their respective regions.

Supervision Provided

Depending on the stage of the criminal justice process at which offenders become involved with TASC, the role of the TASC programs may vary. In pretrial cases, TASC works with the defendant, his or her attorney and the District Attorney to provide information relevant to the outcome of the case. However, the majority of cases are seen on a post-trial basis.

TASC uses a standardized assessment instrument to determine if the offender has a substance abuse or mental health need. If a need is documented, a referral is made to an appropriate treatment provider. The TASC care manager monitors the offender's participation in treatment and reports the offender's progress to the probation officer. If the offender fails to comply with treatment, the TASC care manager reports the non-compliance to the probation officer and discusses potential modifications to the existing service plan. TASC standard operating procedures outline minimum contact requirements based on the offender's risk to public safety, consistent with the Structured Sentencing Act. Offenders referred to TASC are required to submit to urinalysis. Care managers are in frequent contact with treatment professionals and supervising probation officers to ascertain the offender's level of participation and compliance. TASC submits monthly progress reports to the probation officer.

Statutory Authority

There is no specific statute authorizing TASC. It is administered under the general provision of services by the Division of Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities and Substance Abuse Services in Chapter 122C of the General Statutes.

Drug Education Schools

Purpose

In 1981, the General Assembly mandated a statewide system of Drug Education Schools (DES) to target social/recreational possessors of marijuana. The purpose of DES is early intervention in the pattern of drug use by first offenders charged with certain drug possession offenses.

Eligible Population

DES may be ordered as a condition of probation for persons convicted of, or granted a deferred prosecution for, certain drug offenses. Participation in DES is authorized by statute for the offenses of misdemeanor possession of controlled substances, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of less than one gram of cocaine, or inhaling or possessing toxic vapors. To be eligible for DES, an offender must have no prior conviction for any offense involving a controlled substance, drug paraphernalia, or toxic vapors. Offenders must complete DES within 150 days of the imposition of probation.

Some defendants are ordered to participate in DES under a form of "probation without conviction." Following a verdict or plea of guilty, the court may defer further proceedings without entering judgment and place the defendant on probation under certain terms and conditions, including the completion of DES. The court may impose other conditions on the defendant, including any of the regular conditions of probation. If the defendant violates a condition of probation, the court may enter an adjudication of guilt and proceed to sentencing. If the defendant successfully completes probation, the court must discharge the defendant and dismiss the proceedings. The 150-day deadline for completion of DES does not apply in these cases.

The typical DES offender is a 25-year-old old white male charged with Schedule VI (marijuana) and drug paraphernalia violations.

Organizational Structure and Budget

Drug Education Schools are administered by the Department of Health and Human Services, Division of Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities and Substance Abuse Services. Each Local Management Entity for mental health, developmental disabilities and substance abuse services must ensure the availability of DES. The staff that provides the DES curriculum has other primary job responsibilities; and teaching the course is ancillary. Drug Education Schools are self-supporting through a fee of $150 per case.

Supervision Provided

The DES curriculum is a standardized 15-hour course taught in 150-minute segments. The curriculum is based on an effective education model, covering topics such as legal, social and financial implications of substance use and abuse, pharmacology and physiology of drugs, and life skills (peer pressure, communication, and decision-making). For offenders who participate pursuant to a deferred prosecution agreement, DES is responsible for managing the case and reporting violations to the court. When DES is imposed as a condition of supervised probation, staff reports the offender's progress to the probation officer who is responsible for reporting violations to the court.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 90-96, -96.01, -113.14.

Fines

Purpose

A fine is a financial penalty. It may be the sole sanction of a community punishment or a condition of unsupervised or supervised probation.

Eligible Population

A fine is a community punishment and may be imposed for most crimes. Some statutes set a minimum or a maximum amount for a fine; otherwise the amount is discretionary. The court must consider the burden that payment will impose in view of the financial resources of the defendant.

Organizational Structure and Budget

There are no identifiable agency costs associated with offenders who receive only a fine.

Supervision Provided

The sentencing judge may order that if the fine is not paid, the offender must appear in court at a specified time to show cause why he or she should not be imprisoned.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. Chapter 15A, Article 84.

Unsupervised Probation

Purpose

Unsupervised probation is probation without supervision by a probation officer. An offender on unsupervised probation is subject to all regular conditions of probation except supervision, which include remaining crime-free, satisfying child support, not possessing firearms or other deadly weapons, remaining gainfully employed, and paying court costs and fines.

Eligible Population

Unsupervised probation is a community punishment. It may be granted to offenders whose class of offense and prior record or conviction level authorize a community punishment as a sentence disposition, or who are convicted of impaired driving. The court may place an offender on unsupervised probation for a maximum of five years. Unsupervised probation is generally used for misdemeanants who do not need supervision in the community.

Organizational Structure and Budget

There are no identifiable agency costs associated with offenders under unsupervised probation.

Supervision Provided

Offenders under unsupervised probation do not receive supervision from a probation officer. Only a judge can reduce, terminate, continue, extend, modify or revoke unsupervised probation.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 15A-1341 through 15A-1347.

Community Service Work Program

Purpose

The purpose of the Community Service Work Program (CSWP) is to enable offenders to repay the community for damages caused by their criminal acts. CSWP requires the offender to work for free for public or nonprofit agencies in an area that will benefit the greater community. Each offender must pay a fee of $225.00, which is collected by the Clerk of Superior Court and returned to the State's General Fund.

Eligible Population

Five community service work programs began in 1981, under a federal grant. Until 1983, only first-time property offenders were eligible for CSWP. In 1983, as a part of the Safe Roads Act, CSWP became a mandatory requirement for some levels of DWI offenders in lieu of prison or jail time. Under structured sentencing, CSWP is considered a community punishment. It is also used as a sanctioning tool at every stage of the criminal justice system. It may be imposed as the sole sanction if the offender's prior record and class of offense allow a community punishment, or used in combination with other sanctions. Non-violent first offenders are also eligible for CWSP as a condition of a deferred prosecution agreement. Felony offenders sentenced to prison under the former Fair Sentencing Act are eligible for Community Service Parole under certain guidelines and restrictions. Community Service Parole is not available under the Structured Sentencing Act.

Organization and Structure

In 1984, CSWP became a statewide program administered by the Division of Victim and Justice Services within the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. On January 1, 2002, CSWP was transferred into the Department of Correction, Division of Community Corrections, and is now directly administered by this Division. Each Judicial District is required to have at least one judicial service coordinator to interview, place, and monitor the progress of offenders in their community service work. During fiscal year 2009/10, there were 215 community service coordinators located across the state, maintaining an average caseload (# of cases) of 114. Offenders performed 1,941,574 hours of work with an estimated value of $14,054,592. Total community service fees collected in FY2009/10 were $7,099,247.31.

Supervision Provided

CSWP staff interviews offenders, assigns them to worksite locations, and monitors their progress in completing their required work hours and payment of the CSWP fee. CSWP maintains contact with both the offender and the work placement agency. If an offender is placed on supervised probation or parole, any non-compliance issue is reported to the probation officer for review and appropriate action. If the offender is placed on unsupervised probation, the CSWP staff reports the non-compliance to the court or to the District Attorney's Office.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 20-179.4 and 143B-262.4.

Supervised Probation, Post-Release Supervision and Parole

Purpose

The purposes of probation supervision are to control the offender in the community, provide opportunities for substance abuse and mental health treatment, ensure compliance with the conditions of probation, and enforce the conditions of probation through the violation process. Offenders are classified based on their risk to public safety and their criminogenic (crime-producing) needs. Special conditions may be imposed to further restrict freedom and limit movement in the community, to add further punitive measures, or to establish a complete individual treatment plan addressing the special needs and risk of the offender in order to provide realistic opportunities for behavioral changes.

The purposes of post-release supervision and parole are to protect the public and assist the offender in reintegrating into the community after a period of incarceration. Offenders are supervised at various levels of intensity based on their risk to public safety and their criminogenic needs.

Eligible Population

Basic supervised probation is a community punishment. Basic supervised probation may be granted to offenders whose class of offense and prior record or conviction level authorize a community punishment as a sentencing disposition or who are convicted of impaired driving.

If the court sentences an offender to an intermediate punishment, it must place the offender on supervised probation and impose one or more of the following intermediate sanctions: special probation, attendance at a residential program, house arrest with electronic monitoring, intensive probation, assignment to a Day Reporting Center, or assignment to a Drug Treatment Court program. Offenders who violate probation may also be ordered to enter these programs from a less restrictive supervision level.

Unless the court makes a specific finding that a longer or shorter term of probation is necessary, the court imposes a term of no less than 12 and no more than 30 months for a felon sentenced to a community punishment and a term of no less than 18 and no more than 36 months for a felon sentenced to an intermediate punishment. Probationers are a diverse group, from first offenders to chronic offenders who have committed property crimes, public order crimes (i.e., drugs and alcohol offenses), and assaultive crimes.

Under the Structured Sentencing Act, certain felony offenders are required to be on post-release supervision after completing their period of incarceration. The Post-Release Supervision and Parole Commission sets the conditions of post-release supervision.

Parole eligibility depends on laws in effect prior to the Structured Sentencing Act. Under these laws, the Post-Release Supervision and Parole Commission determines the parole release date and sets the conditions of parole supervision.

Organizational Structure

On June 30, 2010 the Division of Community Corrections in the Department of Correction had 1,945 certified probation/parole officer positions with 2,281 total employees. These officers supervise offenders sentenced by the courts to probation or offenders serving a period of post-release or parole supervision. The probation/parole population for June 30, 2010 was 111,743. During the spring of 2010, the Division transitioned to one class of officer supervising all types of offenders with varying punishment types. The Division's goal is to reach caseloads of sixty offenders per officer.

Supervision Provided

Probation, post-release, and parole supervision vary in intensity and restrictiveness depending on the level of supervision. The court and the probation officer match the offender to the appropriate supervision level. The Division of Community Corrections Field Operations Policies and Procedures advocate that probation/parole officers approach each case by balancing the elements of treatment and control. Officers may serve as brokers of community treatment and educational resources while they supervise offenders to ensure compliance with the conditions of probation, post-release supervision, or parole.

For each level of supervision, the Department of Correction requires officers to adhere to minimum contact standards as summarized below:

I. Intermediate Supervision Standards (Level I) – Intermediate Punishments and Special Populations

A. Minimum Offender Contact Standards for the First 30 Days of Supervision

1. Initial face-to-face contact the day of sentencing or release.
2. Home verification within 3 calendar days.
3. Offender-management contact after the day of sentencing or release but within the first 30 days.
4. Face-to-face family contact explaining conditions, rules and regulations.
5. Inform the offender and the family of warrantless search conditions, if ordered by the court.
6. Warrantless search for weapons and materials prohibited to special populations or programs, if ordered by the court.
7. Drug screen, if ordered by the court.
8. Face-to-face weekend contact.
9. Schedule an assessment or referral to appropriate agencies, if ordered by the court.
10. Ensure that all special conditions are acted upon and enforced.

B. Minimum Offender Contact Standards for the Duration of Level I Supervision

1. Two face-to-face contacts every 30 days: one offender-management contact and one home contact.
2. Monthly staffing with Offender Management Team (offender presence not required).

II. Intermediate Supervision Standards (Level II)

Certain offenders enter supervision at Intermediate Level II. These cases require the first 30-day supervision standards. The population for offenders entering Intermediate Level II includes DWI Level 1 and 2 offenders, offenders receiving post-release supervision, offenders released from continuous split-sentence, We-for-Them cases identified by the Chief Probation/Parole Officer as needing Intermediate supervision, offenders awaiting placement into Residential Community Corrections (See A below). Certain offenders move to Intermediate Level II after completing all of the requirements for Level I supervision, to include the first 30-day supervision standards. The population for offenders moving to Intermediate Level II include those who have completed non-continuous split-sentence, residential community corrections, house arrest, Day Reporting Centers, Drug Treatment Court and intensive probation.

A. Minimum Offender Contact Standards for the first 30 days of Supervision

1. Initial face-to-face contact the day of sentencing or release.
2. Home verification within 3 calendar days.

3. Offender-management contact after the day of sentencing or release but within first 30 days.
4. Face-to-face family contact explaining conditions, rules and regulations.
5. Inform the offender and the family of warrantless search conditions, if ordered by the court.
6. Warrantless search, if ordered by the court.
7. Drug screen, if ordered by the court.
8. Face-to-face weekend contact.
9. Schedule an assessment or referral to appropriate agencies, if ordered by the court.
10. Ensure that all special conditions are acted upon and enforced.

B. Minimum Offender Contact Standards for the Duration of Level II Supervision

1. One offender-management contact every 30 days.
2. One face-to-face home contact every 60 days.

III. Community Supervision Standards

Officers supervising offenders at the Community level monitor compliance through field and office supervision, maintaining contacts to ensure that the needs of the offender are met and the risk to the community remains low. Supervision may be increased beyond the minimum requirements on an as-needed basis as determined by the supervising officer and/or the Chief Probation/Parole Officer.

A. Minimum Case Management Expectations and Offender Contact Standards for the First 90 days of Supervision

First 30 days:

1. Conduct an initial face-to-face contact the day of sentencing or release. The Probation/Parole Officer will explain the conditions of supervision and any program rules and regulations.
2. Conduct a home verification.
3. Conduct an offender-management contact after the day of sentencing or release but before the end of the first 30 days.
4. If ordered by the court, inform the offender and the family that the offender, the residence or the vehicle are subject to a warrantless search by the supervising officer, a team of Probation/Parole Officers and accompanied by law enforcement.
5. If ordered by the court, conduct a drug screen.
6. Ensure that all special conditions are acted upon and enforced.

Next 60 days:

1. Conduct one offender-management contact every 30 days.
2. Ensure that all special conditions are acted upon and enforced.

At the end of the first 90 days of supervision the Probation Officer will evaluate offender progress, to determine whether compliance has been achieved, prior to reducing the contact standards as cited in 6.B below.

- B. Minimum Offender Contact Standards for the Duration of Community Supervision (Offenders in Compliance): one offender-management contact every 90 days.

IV. Suspended Supervision Standards

- A. One collateral contact with the offender's family or acquaintances every 90 days.
- B. One criminal record check every 90 days.

When staffing cases with the chief probation/parole officer, the supervising officer may administratively increase or decrease the level of supervision within the community or intermediate range. Decreasing the level provides a measure to reward compliance, while increasing the level provides increased control measures.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 15A-1341 through 15A-1347, 15A-1368 through 15A-1368.6, 15A-1370.1 through 15A-1376, 15A-1380.1 through 15A-1380.2, 143B-262(c).

Electronic House Arrest/Electronic Monitoring

Purpose

House arrest with electronic monitoring is a special condition of supervised probation, post-release supervision, or parole. The purposes of house arrest with electronic monitoring are to restrict the offender's freedom and movement in the community, to increase supervision of convicted offenders, to ease prison overcrowding, and to save taxpayers money. House arrest with electronic monitoring is available statewide through the Department of Correction, Division of Community Corrections.

Eligible Population

House arrest with electronic monitoring is an intermediate punishment. If an offender's class of offense and prior record or conviction level authorizes an intermediate punishment as a sentence disposition, the judge may place the offender on house arrest with electronic monitoring. A judge or the Post-Release Supervision and Parole Commission may also impose this sanction in response to an offender's violation of probation, parole, or post-release supervision.

Organizational Structure

All house arrest with electronic monitoring cases are supervised by probation/parole officers who respond to violations during regular work hours. Designated officers respond after regular work hours.

Supervision Provided

House arrest with electronic monitoring uses Global Positioning Satellite (GPS) technology to monitor and restrict the offender's movement. Other than approved leave for employment, counseling, a course of study or vocational training, the offender is restricted to his or her home. A transmitter is fitted to an offender's ankle and linked to a portable unit carried by the offender which tracks the offender movement and stores all zones and schedules. This information is downloaded to a central computer. If this signal is interrupted by the offender going beyond the authorized radius of the receiver or not complying with the authorized zone and schedule the host computer records the date and time of the signal's disappearance. The computer will also record the date and time the signal resumes. If a signal interruption occurs during a period when the probationer or parolee should be at home, the violation is checked by the probation/parole officer or by a designated electronic house arrest response officer. The average stay on house arrest is 3.4 months.

Statutory Authority

N.C. Gen. Stat. § 15A-1343(b1)(3c).

Day Reporting Centers (Criminal Justice Partnership Program)

Purpose

The purposes of the State-County Criminal Justice Partnership Program (CJPP) are to reduce recidivism, reduce the number of probation revocations, reduce alcoholism and other drug dependencies among offenders, and reduce the cost of incarceration to the State and counties.

The purposes of a Day Reporting Center (DRC) are to enhance structure, accountability, and treatment for offenders on supervised probation.

Eligible Population

An adult offender who receives an intermediate punishment or is serving a term of parole or post-release supervision after an active prison sentence is eligible for a CJPP program. A DRC is an intermediate punishment. If the offender's class of offense and prior record or conviction level authorize an intermediate punishment as a sentence disposition, it is in the judge's discretion to order an offender to attend a Day Reporting Center Program as a special condition of supervised probation.

Organizational Structure

CJPP programs are provided grant funding to counties for the express purpose of establishing community-based programs balancing control and treatment for a specific population. Eligible populations include intermediate punishment offenders, community punishment violators who are at risk for revocation, and offenders on parole or post-release supervision. Programs eligible for CJPP grant monies include DRCs, satellite substance abuse programs (SSA) and offender resource centers (RC).

DRCs are operated across the state and focus on program/service delivery to offenders. Offenders assigned to a DRC report to the center on a structured and frequent basis, receiving such services as substance abuse treatment, vocational training, GED, and cognitive behavioral interventions. Local government or non-profit agency employees operate the centers, with the Division of Community Corrections' Officers supervising the offenders and maintaining a presence in the facilities.

For FY 2009/10, participating CJPP programs served the following 95 counties: Alamance, Alexander, Alleghany, Anson, Ashe, Avery, Beaufort, Bertie, Brunswick, Buncombe, Burke, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Catawba, Chatham, Cherokee, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Columbus, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Davidson, Davie, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Gates, Graham, Granville, Greene, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Haywood, Henderson, Hertford, Hoke, Iredell, Jackson, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Macon, Madison, Martin, McDowell, Mecklenburg, Mitchell, Montgomery, Moore, Nash, New Hanover, Northampton, Onslow, Orange, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pender, Person, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Tyrrell, Union, Vance, Wake, Warren, Washington, Watauga, Wayne, Wilkes, Wilson, Yadkin, and Yancey.

Available services include, but are not limited to, assessments, screenings, counseling, cognitive behavior intervention (CBI), alcohol and drug treatment, and educational, vocational, and employment programs and services.

Supervision Provided

DRC participants are required to have frequent contact with staff during the intensive phases of the program. As the offender complies with program requirements and achieves established goals, the frequency of contact diminishes accordingly.

Statutory Authority: N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 15A-1340.11(3) and 15A-1343(b1)(2), Chapter 143B, Article 6A.

RESIDENTIAL PROGRAMS

Drug Alcohol Recovery Treatment (DART) – Cherry

Drug Alcohol Recovery Treatment (DART-Cherry) is a residential drug treatment facility operated by the Department of Correction, Division of Alcohol and Chemical Dependency Programs, located near the grounds of Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, North Carolina. DART-Cherry is composed of two different program types.

DART-28 is a 100-bed unit where predominately DWI offenders receive treatment for a 28-day period. The more extensive DART-90 program has two 100-bed units where offenders receive treatment for a 90-day period. Participation in either program is ordered as a condition of supervised probation, as a result of a TASC assessment referral, or as a condition of release from prison by the Post Release Supervision and Parole Commission. After completion of the residential time period, the offender returns to the community under the supervision of a Division of Community Corrections' probation/parole officer.

DART-90 is an intermediate punishment under the Structured Sentencing Act. The 90-day program operates as a modified therapeutic treatment model. It strives to simulate the experiences of living in a community, creating opportunities for participants to be part of a family and preparing them for employment through job readiness courses. The program is divided into four phases: (1) three weeks of orientation; (2) six weeks of treatment; (3) three weeks of reentry preparation; and (4) aftercare in the community after release.

During orientation, offenders are introduced to the therapeutic model, including exposure to rules, substance abuse education, activities, family organization, and mock encounter groups. During treatment, offenders are involved in three groups to meet with counselors and peers. Offenders are taught to take responsibility for their actions. Negative behaviors are addressed by their peers and in encounter groups. Along with various treatment sessions and cognitive behavior intervention, offenders receive life skills training, employment counseling, and may obtain their GED, if needed. The reentry period allows time to develop a relapse prevention plan, prepare an offender to return to the community, and coordinate the return with the supervising probation/parole officer. Offenders must also perform eight hours of community service during the 90-day period.

Delancey Street Foundation

Delancey Street accepts misdemeanor and felony offenders, many of whom have substance abuse problems. Delancey Street Foundation is a non-profit organization with residential centers in New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Mexico, and North Carolina. It is a residential educational community with a self-governing philosophy that stresses acquiring life and job skills and teamwork. No government funds are accepted, and no fee is charged; it is a self-supporting enterprise with donations from the community. No one in Delancey Street Foundation receives a salary.

The North Carolina residence is in Greensboro. It opened in 1987 and has a capacity of 30. Most residents come to Delancey Street Foundation from criminal justice agencies or the court, but anyone can ask to come in on their own. Interviews for admission are conducted by other residents of Delancey Street. Offenders must commit to a two-year stay and may be rotated among residential centers throughout the country during that period if they are interested. Residents learn academic, vocational, personal and interpersonal skills on an "each one teach one" concept. Old-fashioned values like the work ethic and taking care of others are stressed. No professional therapy is provided; no drugs or alcohol or threats of violence are allowed.

The Center for Community Transitions, Inc.

(formerly ECO, Inc.)

The Center for Community Transitions (CCT) is multi faceted non-profit serving people with criminal records and their families. Its mission is to strengthen the community by offenders find healthier and more productive ways of living. CCT provides employment and transition services, supports alternatives to incarceration, and restores and strengthens family bonds. Its programs are based on two research findings that continue to hold true today: offenders who maintain family ties while incarcerated and who gain employment after incarceration are less likely to return to prison. In 2009-10 CCT assisted over 2,000 people through its four (4) programs.

The LifeWorks! transition program, assisting people with criminal records with their return to the community, began in 1974. Its goal is to reduce the return to prison/jail by providing stabilization and reintegration services to offenders and their families. LifeWorks! focuses on pre-release planning, transition services, employment preparation, employment and retention. Participants are assisted with basic needs such as housing, food, and clothing, as well as employment readiness and job searches. LifeWorks! received grants for the 09-10 year for additional mental health, substance abuse and security threat group (gang reentry) case managers and the Prison Reentry Initiative Generation II grants. In 2009-10 LifeWorks! received a collaborative grant that includes the Mecklenburg County Jail and Hope Haven, Inc. to provide pre release vocational training, housing for those who completed substance abuse treatment in the jails/prisons, and a job developer to share with community partners. CCT also contracts with the Mecklenburg Department of Social Services to serve Work First participants who have a criminal record.

Families Doing Time is made up of several components. Parenting classes are provided in the Mecklenburg County Jail for men and women. Families Doing Time provides a support group for families and friends of inmates that meets monthly. Empowering Kids with Incarcerated Parents (EKWIP) is a school based support group for children of incarcerated parents and services to their families.

The Center for Women opened in 1987 as a work release facility for female inmates within three years of a release date. This program focuses on work release, but provides other opportunities for the women to become better prepared for the transition from prison to the community. Participants are selected by the Department of Correction based on the inmate's promotion to Minimum Level III and their desire to participate in the program. The program capacity is twenty residents. Through their earnings, residents contribute part of the cost of staying at the Center, and make payments toward child support, restitution, court fees, and fines. The average length of stay is approximately 19 months.

In May 2006, Mecklenburg Sentencing Services became CCT's fourth program. It provides sentencing reports to the courts for defendants whose sentencing range includes intermediate and active sentence options.

FIRST at Blue Ridge, Inc.

(formerly Forsyth Initiative for Residential Self-Help Treatment, Inc.)

FIRST at Blue Ridge Inc., is a non-profit, long-term residential therapeutic program for individuals with chronic substance abuse problems. Its mission is to provide opportunity, guidance, and education to those with addictions and assist them to make positive life changes in order to become responsible and productive members of society. FIRST has been in operation since 1991 and is governed by a volunteer Board of Directors. The three-acre treatment campus is located east of Asheville in Ridgecrest, North Carolina; but clients come from all walks of life across the state. They are referred by many sources including family members, friends, former graduates, other treatment programs, the judicial system, and probation and parole.

FIRST is a highly structured, modified therapeutic community with a 12-step focused clinical overlay. Residents in the long-term program pay a one time $170.00 program fee to enter the program and they commit to remain until they successfully complete all program requirements, which include completing the program curriculum, academic progress including working towards obtaining a GED, obtaining a Narcotics or Alcoholics Anonymous sponsor, and active participation in the fellowships. The services offered by FIRST include vocational and basic education, individual and group therapy, referrals to intervention and prevention education for family members, access to off-site, community-based medical and mental health services and the opportunity for residents to enroll in local community and state colleges.

Residents are eligible for graduation after completing all of their core curriculum, assignments and other clinical activities deemed necessary by the clinical staff, obtaining and maintaining a twelve-step sponsor, attaining Step Five in AA/NA, and maintaining continuous gainful employment or college or trade school enrollment. Time in the program prior to graduation is generally 12 months. At 10 months, a resident may apply for “re-entry” if they meet the requirements. During re-entry, residents seek employment in the community to begin saving funds for re-integration into society. Residents with obligations like child support, probation fees, or restitution begin paying these debts in order to minimize their financial impact upon graduation.

After 12 months in the program or upon graduation, the resident may apply for admission to a Recovery Cottage. Current cottage residents interview applicants and determine whom they will accept into “their” houses. Cottage residency can continue up to eighteen months before the resident transitions to independent living in the community. Residents who graduate from FIRST are encouraged to apply to the Recovery Cottages in order to provide a familiar, safe environment while building resources and strength in their recovery before moving off site.

“Vets FIRST” is a program available to veterans who have served their country and have a General or Honorable Discharge. It is designed to prepare homeless, substance abusing veterans for reintegration into their communities as productive, self-sufficient, and substance free citizens. FIRST is one of the few groups in the nation to offer substance abuse treatment, case management, job placement assistance, higher education referral, and room and board to homeless veterans.

FIRST is funded mostly through its Business Training Schools and contracts with local employers who act as Vocational Training Partners. The Business Training Schools include operations such as landscaping, local delivery services, painting, flooring and tile, general repair services and commercial janitorial and custodial services. FIRST has also received support from grants and foundations and is always seeking new funding streams.

Halfway Houses/Supervised Living Substance Abuse Facilities

Halfway Houses/Supervised Living Substance Abuse Facilities are designed to provide structured living environments for individuals with substance use disorders, and are licensed by the Department of Health and Human Services as Supervised Living “Half-way houses”.

Halfway house residents must be engaged in outpatient treatment, and the goal is to return the individual to independent living within a specified time. There are 43 Halfway Houses/Supervised Living licensed facilities located in 24 counties in North Carolina. These counties are: Alamance, Buncombe, Burke, Cabarrus, Craven, Cumberland, Davidson, Durham, Forsyth, Gaston, Guilford, Harnett, Mecklenburg, Moore, New Hanover, Orange, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Sampson, Surry, Union, Vance and Wayne. The total bed capacity for the 43 facilities is 540. There are 395 male beds, 145 female beds, and 0 beds for women with children. All of the beds are specifically for persons with substance use disorders.

The majority of these facilities receive some public support for their services. In many cases, this support is through the local mental health and substance abuse public program. The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation offers support to residents in halfway houses in the form of training or funds while the person is seeking employment.

Most residents of halfway houses work in some capacity to help support their stay in the house. Houses have rules such as curfews, Alcoholics Anonymous/Narcotics Anonymous attendance, no substance use, as well as other policies. There are also consequences for violation of these rules, including expulsion from the house. These homes also work directly or indirectly with the criminal justice system as some residents are on probation or parole. Normally, the average halfway house has between 6-12 beds and the length of stay ranges from 2 months to 2 years with an average of approximately 6-8 months.

Oxford House

There are 135 Oxford Houses located in the following 26 counties: Alamance, Buncombe, Burke, Catawba, Cumberland, Dare, Durham, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Gaston Guilford, Harnett, Iredell, Johnston, Mecklenburg, Nash, New Hanover, Orange, Person, Pitt, Randolph, Rowan, Swain, Vance, Wake, and Wayne. Oxford House has a total capacity 1005 beds, 263 for women and 742 for men. The typical number of beds in a house is 8.

Oxford House is a model of self-run and self-supported recovery housing. The residents of an Oxford House are totally self-supporting: they elect officers, take responsibility for the rent and upkeep of the house, and operate the group house in a manner that provides mutual support for a fundamental change in lifestyle to assure long-term abstinence from drugs and alcohol. Attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous/Narcotics Anonymous meetings is mandatory. Each residence pays an average of $100.00 per week.

According to the final resident survey at the end of 2009, 83% of Oxford House residents had served time in jail or some correctional facility, for an average of 1 year and 5 months. Most houses had accepted parolees and probationers as residents within the prior year.

Summit House

During FY 2009/10, Summit House residential centers in Greensboro and Charlotte, housed female offenders (pregnant or the mothers of young children) convicted of nonviolent crimes. The residential facility in Raleigh is following in the footsteps of the Charlotte and Greensboro Summit House sites in creating an opportunity to serve more families by using best practice standards, which will improve the programming and facilities. Summit House is currently investigating new options for a facility in the Triangle.

The goal of Summit House is to break the cycle of crime. At Summit House, the family remains intact while the woman satisfies her obligation to the criminal justice system. The center uses a therapeutic community model to focus on improving education and life skills necessary for independent living. Residents must be 18 or older and eligible for an intermediate punishment as the result of the conviction for one or more nonviolent offenses. Their children must be seven years of age or under. Summit House provides and brokers individual, group, and substance abuse counseling, classes in basic living skills, and access to GED classes and/or further education.

Summit House assists in returning offenders to employment and provides or brokers services for the children of residents. The minimum stay at Summit House is 12 months. Currently, total capacity is 22 families. The annual operating budget is approximately $1.8 million. Funds are provided to Summit House, Inc., a non-profit organization, by private sources and state and local government sources.

Triangle Residential Options for Substance Abusers (TROSAs)

Triangle Residential Options for Substance Abusers (TROSAs) is a non-profit, two-year residential, self-help program for substance abusers. The program emphasizes best practices in substance abuse treatment along with vocational training, educational development, development of interpersonal skills, and transition of residents back into the community. TROSA serves both men and women, ages 18 and older. The program is located in Durham, North Carolina, and provides program services for over 350 residents. The TROSA program is available at no cost to the individual.

Vocational training: TROSA has developed several businesses that provide vocational experience for residents. All TROSA residents acquire job skills and develop a work ethic through their training experience; moreover, the income generated from the businesses helps to fund the program costs. Businesses currently in operation include moving and storage, painting, brick masonry, catering, lawn maintenance, picture framing, construction, automotive, a furniture store, and auto body and painting. Consistent with the self-help nature of the program, residents also are involved in the operations of the facility, which include the financial, administrative, and medical offices.

Educational development: Another critical component of the TROSA program is educational development. Following the workday, residents without a high school diploma participate in literacy and GED classes conducted by the Durham Technical Community College and volunteers from the community. Residents also participate in computer classes held at the on-site computer lab. When residents reach approximately 19 months in the program, they begin participating in personal finance, job readiness, and relapse prevention classes. In addition, all residents benefit from daily motivational and educational seminars. Several special interest and recreational classes also are offered, including creative writing and art classes, and basketball and softball teams.

Development of interpersonal skills: The third component of the TROSA program relates to developing interpersonal communication skills. TROSA offers a highly structured environment to help residents address issues of substance abuse and addiction and establish a new direction for their lives and families. Group sessions allow residents to benefit from the experiences of others and provide a forum for interpersonal problem solving. Specific groups and classes are provided in anger management, parenting, building relationships and gender specific classes for women in recovery. Residents also are encouraged to volunteer and participate in community activities in order to learn how to have fun without the influence of drugs and alcohol and to develop communication skills with people outside of the TROSA community.

Transition back into the community: TROSA has developed a comprehensive program that assists residents in their transitions back into the community upon graduation. Residents participate in a job readiness class that prepares them for their job searches and employment outside of TROSA during the last 3 months in the program. Residents save their incomes to assist them upon graduation. In addition, residents can purchase cars donated to TROSA at the cost of parts to repair the vehicles. Lastly, TROSA provides low-cost, sober housing for graduates. Graduates in housing are required to attend bi-monthly group sessions with other graduates to help them maintain their sobriety.

V. Program Activities

All DTC participants appear before a specially trained judge at, typically, biweekly status hearings for approximately one year. Prior to the status hearing, the DTC core team (i.e., judge, district attorney, defense attorney, treatment provider, case manager, law enforcement liaison, and probation officer) meets to review each participant's drug test results, treatment attendance, behavior in the community, and treatment plan progress since the last status hearing. The core team makes recommendations concerning the imposition of appropriate sanctions and incentives. At the status hearing, the judge engages each participant in an open dialogue concerning his/her progress or lack thereof and, if appropriate, imposes rewards or sanctions designed to further stimulate the participant's movement through the treatment process.

V. Program Activities

Community Service offenders are placed in local, non-profit and governmental agencies to perform work that provides benefits to the community where the crime occurred. The work provided is needed by the agencies and would have otherwise been paid for by local and/or county taxes; therefore, there are huge savings in monetary compensation for the hours worked by the offenders.

V. Program Activities

DRC/CJPP programs generally fall into 2 categories of service delivery. Services are either on-site where participants remain in the DRC while various types of services are provided throughout the day; or services are brokered where the participant must go to various locations to receive a range of services, but all activities are coordinated by DRC/CJPP program personnel. The services available include, but are not limited to the following: assessments, screenings, counseling, alcohol and drug treatment programs/services, educational programs/services, vocational programs/services, and employment programs/services.

V. Program Activities

Delancey Street Foundation-NC is a re-educational facility. The focus is on obtaining a GED and at least 3 marketable skills, and to become responsible, honest and accountable for one's actions. The program is based on positive peer pressure and "each one teach one." There is not paid staff; everyone is a resident, with the exclusion of Mimi Silbert, President and CEO of Delancey Street.
